

Greet new team members.

Everyone has been the newest staff member in a team, and we all remember how difficult it can be. This week we will make sure that we check on the new (or newest) staff members.

Every workplace has some official and unofficial information that the new staff members need access to in order to be successful in their work. They will also have a lot of questions, some of which they might feel too embarrassed to ask. This week, we'll encourage you to make sure that all these questions get answered.

How one is received in their new workplace makes such a difference, it's all about first impressions. Probably you still remember the workplaces that welcomed you with open arms, and that made a huge difference to your wellbeing, so make sure that you continue that tradition.

Make everyone feel welcome!