

Surprise your colleagues.

Being noticed and valued at work can make a huge difference in people's wellbeing at work. This can easily be achieved with small surprises that you can leave for your colleagues on a regular basis. A nice note, a fresh cup of coffee or printed resources for them as well. All of these are small gestures that make your colleagues feel like you are thinking about them.

Surprises also lift the mood and sometimes that is all that is needed to turn someone's day around. And the good thing about surprises is that giving them makes you also feel better yourself.

Small gestures make a big difference!